A PEER-REVIEWED REFEREED JOURNAL

The ELEGBAKNA Journal Of Theatre And Film Studies (ISSN: 1595-2800) is a prestigious online academic peer-reviewed journal from Nigeria, dedicated to advancing the fields of Theatre and Film Studies. Published thrice annually, the journal has established itself as a significant platform for scholarly discourse, haven successfully released two issues of RSUJTFS to date.

For the upcoming issue, Vol. iv, scheduled for publication in March 2025, we invite contributions from university and college teachers, scholars, professionals, postgraduate students, young researchers, and practicing theatricians. This is an opportunity to share your insights, research, and expertise with an international audience of peers and enthusiasts.

SCOPE AND FOCUS

The ELEGBAKNA Journal of Theatre and Film Studies seeks scholarly submissions that explore a wide array of topics within Theatre and Film Studies. We are interested in works that:

- Develop new theoretical frameworks
- Report empirical and analytical research
- Present critical discourses
- Apply theories to case studies
- Introduce innovative research methodologies

Our aim is to foster a rich academic dialogue that bridges traditional and contemporary perspectives in Theatre and Film Studies.

TYPES OF SUBMISSIONS

We welcome submissions in the following formats:

- Research Articles: Original research papers utilizing rigorous methodologies.
- Commentaries: Opinion-based pieces reflecting practical field experiences from esteemed actors, playwrights, directors, and craftsmen. Potential interviewers must discuss their profiles with the Editor before submission.
- Case Studies: In-depth analyses of specific instances within the field.

- Interviews: Conversations with notable figures in Theatre and Film.
- Book Reviews: Critical evaluations of published books (no e-books) on Theatre or related fields.
- Performance Reviews: Reviews of theatrical performances staged from 2020 till date

SUGGESTED THEMES AND TOPICS

We encourage submissions on a variety of themes, including but not limited to:

- History of Theatre: Exploring the evolution and historical context of theatrical practices.
- International Theatre: Comparative studies and global perspectives on theatre.
- Theatre Production & Stage Craft: Innovations and techniques in production and stage design.
- Acting and Directing: Methods, pedagogy, and case studies in acting and directing.
- Dramaturgy: The art and theory of dramatic composition and theatrical representation.
- Theatre for Development (TfD): Using theatre as a tool for social change and community development.
- Theatre, Society & Politics: Examining the interplay between theatre and sociopolitical issues.
- Theatre of the Oppressed: Theories and practices of transformative theatre.
- Poor Theatre: Exploring minimalistic approaches and their impact.
- Performance Studies: Interdisciplinary approaches to the study of performance.
- Therapeutic Theatre: Using theatre as a medium for healing and therapy.
- Theatre Aesthetics: Critical discussions on the aesthetics of theatre.
- Theatre Research: Methodologies and approaches in theatre research.
- Folk Theatre: The significance and practices of traditional and folk theatre.
- Theatre Training & Workshops: Innovative training methods and workshop practices.
- Dramatic Theory and Criticism: Theoretical and critical analysis of dramatic works.
- Dramatic Literature: Studies in dramatic texts and playwriting.
- Theatre & Allied Arts: Intersections with cinema, media, communication, and photography.

Authors are encouraged to explore beyond these suggested themes.

Editorial Note:

Embracing Interdisciplinary Scholarship in the Arts and Humanities

It is with immense pleasure and a profound sense of academic fulfilment that I introduce Volume 4 of the Elegbakna Journal of Theatre and Film Studies. This edition exemplifies the journal's commitment to fostering a rich and dynamic intellectual environment, showcasing a diverse array of research and scholarly articles that underscore the multidisciplinary nature of our field. The submissions featured in this volume emanate from a broad spectrum of disciplines, including Theatre Arts, Film Studies, Multimedia Studies, English and Literary Studies, Fine and Applied Arts, Education, Philosophy and other cognate areas, thereby reinforcing the journal's reputation as a veritable platform for interdisciplinary dialogue and knowledge sharing.

The articles presented in this volume are distinguished by their rigour, originality, and intellectual curiosity, demonstrating a collective commitment to exploring innovative ideas, challenging prevailing perspectives, and advancing knowledge in the arts and humanities. Through their subtlety analyses, methodological innovations, and theoretical interventions, the authors contribute to ongoing debates and conversations in their respective fields, thereby enriching our understanding of the complex dynamics that underpin human creativity, expression, and cultural production.

The peer-review process, which is the bedrock of academic publishing, has been meticulously observed in the selection of articles for this volume. Our wonderful reviewers, drawn from a pool of distinguished scholars in the arts and humanities, have brought their expertise and critical acumen to bear on the submissions, ensuring that only high-quality research that meets the journal's standards of academic excellence is published. Consequently, readers can be assured that the content of this volume is not only informative and thought-provoking but also intellectually stimulating and engaging.

I would like to express my profound gratitude to the authors, reviewers, and editorial team for their tireless efforts and unwavering dedication to academic excellence. Their passion for knowledge sharing, commitment to scholarly rigour, and enthusiasm for interdisciplinary collaboration have been instrumental in bringing this volume to fruition. I am confident that the articles featured in this volume will make a significant impact on the field, inspiring new research directions, informing pedagogical practices, and providing valuable insights for scholars, researchers, and practitioners.

As we continue to drive the complexities of the 21st century, it is imperative that we recognize the importance of interdisciplinary scholarship in addressing the multifaceted challenges that confront our world. The Elegbakna Journal of Theatre and Film Studies is committed to playing a leading role in this endeavour, providing a platform for scholars to engage with each other's work, share their research findings, and contribute to the advancement of knowledge in the arts and humanities.

In conclusion, I hope that this volume will be widely read, debated, and built upon, and that it will inspire a new generation of scholars to pursue research in the arts and humanities with renewed vigour and purpose.

Best regards,

Eziwho Emenike Azunwo, PhD
